How the Money goes.

BY JOHN G. SAXE

How goes the money?-Well. I'm sure it isn't hard to tell: t goes for rent and water rates, For bread and butter, coal and grates, Hats, caps and carpets, hoops and hose-And that's the way the money goes!

How goes the money ?-Nay, Don't every body know the way? It goes for bonnets, coats and capes, Silks, satins, muslins, velvets, crapes, Shawls, ribbons, furs and furbelows-And that's the way the money goes?

How goes the money? sure, I wish the ways were something fewer; t goes for wages, taxes, debts, t goes for presents, goes for bets. For paint, pomade and eau-de-rose And that's the way the money goes!

How goes the money? now I've scarce begun to mention how It goes for laces, feathers, rings. Toys, dolls, and other baby things, Whips, whistles, candies, bells, and bows And that's the way the money goes?

How goes the money? Come, I know it doesn't go for rum It goes for schools and Sabbath chimes, For missions, and such things as those

And that's the way the money goes How goes the money? There. I'm out of nationce I declare: It goes for plays and diamond-pins, For public alms and private sins. For hollow shams, and silly shows

And that's the way the money goes I Would not Die in Spring Time.

I would not die in Spring time When grass begins to sprou And after hens have laid an egg. They cackle all about.
When restling "shoats" with ring in snout

Are shut up in a pen, And swallows spark it on the eaves— I would not perish then.

I would not die in Summer And fruit and flowers and nice roast lamb Are all one can desire. When geese are plucked and sheep are sheared, And nut brown are the men; And hay cocks dot the meadows o'er-

I would not die in Autumn. When chestnuts burst the bur; When coons and possums show their heels To save their precious fur.

I would not perish then.

When apples all get mashed to death And their blood makes drunk the me And "Buck" and "Bright" bring pumpkin loads Don't let me step out then.

When Winter comes to drive the birds And great long icicles hang down From noses and from eaves; When turkeys stand with fork in back And inch thick is mince pie, And a ball is coming off at Jake's, Good Lord, how can I die?

INDEPENDENCE .- A western editor lately offered his hat for the best essay on Independence. The following obtained the prize: National independence is easier imagined than described; personal independence consists emphatically in being situated in a clean shirt, drawers, socks, and a nicely blacked pair of boots with at least a dollar and a haff, and a clean cambric in your pocket, on Sunday morning, with your wife on one arm and your baby on the other, taking your own course towards your own preacher in the expectation of having a snooze in your own pew, wherein no one dare venture to nudge you with his elbow, cr tickle your nose with a straw.

A school-master as a punishment to one of his pupils for using profane language, ordered him to take a pair of tongs and watch a hole in the hearth until he had caught a mouse. The boy took the tongs, and demurely waited for the visitor. Directly after he saw a mouse peeping out of the hole. Cautiously placing a leg of the tongs on either side of the hole, he grasped the mouse, and triumphantly swinging it aloft, exclaimed-

"By G-d, I've got him!" "My gracious!" said Ike, "if some fairy would give me wings wouldn't I go round among the planets, though. I'd go to Mars, and Venus, and Juniper, and all the rest of them." "And Satan," said Mrs. Partington, striking in, "and I'm afraid you will go there, whether you get wings or not." Ike whistled and turned the subject to a bunch of grapes that the old lady had laid by to ripen.

The Birth-Mark.

After a full course of medical study I found myself in practice in a small town on the river M ... I say in practice ... I would have been so, had circumstances allowed it; but fortunately (or unfortunately) it was too healthy a place to give me much support, and I had nothing to encourage me to remain. Still, I should have felt unwilling to leave it. The heart always clings to first places. The place where we were born, where our childhood was passed, the first place in which we have lived after marriage, or, perhaps where the first child was ushered into existence-all seem to have a tale peculiar to each, and memory and love repeat over and over again, that well-conned lesson.

Old ladies-those oracles of country townstold me I must not expect practice until I married. To have sympathy with patients, they said, I must be a family man-and so, though trembling as I revolved the problem of our future, I brought home the sweetest being that ever gladdened or saddened a man's heart, and installed her in the tiny cottage which you might see at the foot of yonder hill, only that it is all hidden by lilacs and altheas.

My Ellesif was a contented, easy little creature, never repining, if I could bring her only the poorest and simplest fare-joyous and cheerful with bread and water, and with a bright smile of welcome at my approach, as if I had brought her the wealth of India. I sometimes endured agony on her account, lest this state of things should always last; but it was consoling to know that she at least, was not tretting or repining over the probabilities of life. When at length she woke up to the fact that I was doing absolutely nothing, she told me one day in an enchanting sort of careless way, as if it was the most natural thing in the world, that she could not accept my invitation to ride, as she was to entertain several young ladies at the house. I was dismayed, for the thought of company in our restricted way of life was really overwhelming. I went to drive with a borrowed vehicle. for I was too poor to hire one, and there was a case that come to me like a godsend, but too far off to admit of walking. It was one that my success. I was so absorbed in it that I forgot the company, until I came into the little vestibule and heard the sound of voices. My hand was on the latch, and I could not recede There sat my Ellesif with half a dozen girls grouped around her, hearing a lesson in German. I stood amazed, but seeing me she came eagerly to the door. 'How long has this been thus?' I asked. Twelve whole weeks To-day is the last of the term, and I get my pay for the class.' But how, or why?

'How? Because I know very little excepting German, which I understand very well-my mother you know is German. Why? Because my husband is wearing out his heart, not with work, but for want thereof. Does not the hou satisfy you, Sir Doctor? And pray what fault do you see in the why?' Bachelors will laugh when I say that I called my wife an angel. Let them. They have no angels, poor things, and no wonder they are envious of those who do have them. I went in was introduced to the six young ladies, and saw them give my wife a folded paper each, which as soon as they were gone, she transferred to 'The first fruits, Mark,' she said. 'My first present to my husband!' I shall not tell you how many kisses followed this. Ellesif continued her school, and her pupils increased with the formation of each new class, until all the young ladies in H- were jabbering German like natives.

My wife's energy made my fortune. I bought me a new horse and carriage with which I made the circuit of a number of towns, and Doctor Mark Kingsley, like Byron, awoke one morning and found himself famous. My new carriage had caught the eye of a rich old gentleman who had long been an invalid, and who lived in a neighboring town. He had me called in, and I found favor in his eyes,' as a physician.-Thenceforth I was the doctor of that whole region. My fame rested on the word of a single individual, because he happened to be a rich

one. So much for the influence of wealth. Of course, I could not practice thus in several different towns, without being the confidant of some strange family secrets. Most of these can never be disclosed, because they are still living whose feelings would be injured by the recital. Others again are susceptible of being laid bare to the world, the individuals having passed away and left no one to complain of a breach of trust.

I was sent for hastily one night to attend some patient in the farthest village of my circuit. A man came for me, and would not allow me to stop long enough to have my horse harnessed.

'I will fetch you back again when your visit is over,' he said. 'We must make no delay.' Ellesif looked anxious. She did not quite like such a proceeding, and she began to remonstrate. The stranger turned a beseeching, ear-

'If you are his wife, lady,' he said. 'I would like to ask you if you would withhold him from one of your own sex who is perhaps even now

Ellesif loosed her hold upon my arm. 'No, let any one suffer for want of attention, or to briefly even, than I repeat it. save my foolish fears.

I lingered a moment after the man had gon out, and bestowed on her my hearty approval. 'Drive fast,' said I, to my companion, but indeed I needed not tell him this, for I could hardly see the trees and houses as we passed .-I asked no questions, and the man was silentintent apparently on his driving, without any thought or care for me. It was some time be which I had never visited. We stopped at a was silvering every object round, and I saw quite | return. distinctly that it was no common residence to which I was brought. At the door stood a gentleman, whose countenance seemed familiar to me, but I could not recall him fully to my mind Nor had I time, for he hurried me up stairs immediately, and opening the door of an apartment from whence issued a subdued light and the odor of perfumes, he drew me within it, and led me to a bed, on which lay the most beautiful woman I had ever beheld. Accustomed as I was to hearing Ellesif styled beautiful, and in deed thinking her such myself, I was yet completely dazzled by the splendor of the face now ooking up to me as if to catch hope and strength from my presence. The long, black hair that floated in rich braids over the pillow, the lustrous black eyes shining through tears, the white marble brow, wide and low, the soft, dark encilling of the eye, brow and lashes, and the exquisite shape of the white hand and arm, all in the anxious, yet resigned countenance, how much such a being might suffer, yet be strong.

I pass over the next few hours. They were of exquisite pain and suffering to one, of more than mortal agony to another, and of deep interest and anxiety to myself. At the end of that time, my patient was sleeping quietly, and in the fairy crib hung with the finest lace curtains, that stood by her bedside, was a wee bit of humanity, half smothered with flannels and muslins, and perfectly unconscicus of the harsh. rough world into which it had recently entered.

In the next room, the gentleman, exhausted by watching and anxiety, was slumbering in a large arm-chair-an uneasy slumber, for he started frequently, and moaned as if in mental pain. The man was waiting to take me home and I was anxious to go, for the moon had gone down, and a wild storm was rising. But I had a duty to perform before I could go, and I roused the sleeper that I might perform it. He woke with a start, and murmured some indis-

'It is my duty to tell you,' said I, 'that the child just born, has an irretrievable disfigurement, which it will not be safe to discover to the mother, until she has strength enough to bear

He gasped like a man dying. 'I know what it is,' he exclaimed, involuntarily putting his hand to his throat. 'How-have you seen it?' I knew he had not been in the room, since a moment after the first faint cry of the infant, he had crept in and silently kissed the mother.

He was embarrassed at my question, but I went on to say: 'Yes sir, you are right. The throat has a horrible stain, like that known by the name of wine stain. It is very purple, and extends in streaks down the neck, which is unfortunate, as the child is a girl.'

The man burst into tears. I never saw any one so overwhelmed. 'Merciful God!' he exclaimed, 'must I bear this frightful punishment in the person of my innocent child?' He was wild, despairing, frantic, for a time. Suddenly he seemed to recollect himself. 'Doctor,' he said, trying to speak calmly, 'you will not make use of this affair abroad.' He was now quite confused again. I looked him steadily in the eye.

'I do not understand you, sir. If you think that physicians tattle of any secrets of the sickoom, except under permission, to advance science, you are mistaken. At least, you mistake me. I speak for myself individually, and generally for my brethren.'

'Thanks, doctor. You will understand me that I trust you to speak no word of this night to any person living. You will attend Mrs. Mortimer through the necessary period, and shall be well rewarded. Until she is quite well, do not tell her of this '

There was a stress on the name which made me suspect it was not the right one; and I was convinced of it, when on returning home spoke of my employer as Mr. Mortimer. and the man turned an inquiring look upon me, as if the name was quite new to him. Observing something in my looks I suppose that recalled him to prudence, he took occasion to give his master that name when he spoke of him, but it seemed forced and unnatural.

There came a time, however, when the mother must be told. The child's state must not be left to a chance discovery, lest it shock her into illness at this critical time. I was deputed to

'I cannot,' said Mr. Mortimer. 'But, as you have only a half confidence from me, and some suspicion, too, I suppose, I will throw myself on your honor, and if I judge your appearance rightly, you will not betray me.'

Of course, I said all that was necessary to assure him of this, and he related to me in subno, pray go at once, she exclaimed. 'Do not stance the following story, more rapidly and it will be a Han's-ome achievement.

In his early youth, when the first flush of a prosperous life seemed before him, he had wood and won Rose Ternon, the daughter of a neighbor. Never was a happier or more genial couple, and the marriage was talked of strongly as to take place the following year. But Henry Mortimer was called suddenly away to transact some necessary business on this side the water. (I should have said before, that they lived in fore we arrived at a retired house at the end of | England, but I will not designate the place.)a pretty avenue of trees, in a part of the town He reluctantly left Rose, but her father promised him on the word of a gentleman, that he gate, and walked up a long yard. The moon | should marry his daughter immediately on his Mortimer had a feud of long standing with a rude, rough sort of youth, named Carson He had once insulted Harry, and the quiet contempt with which he had knocked him down and walked on serenely leaving him to pick himself up, enraged Carson to the extent of yowing his ruin. Harry's absence prevented the revenge which he meditated against him-but a bright thought seized him. -He would deprive him of Rose. Carson had sense enough to know that he could not win her affections; but he invented all improbable tales respecting him, and had them carried to her ears. She disbelieved him, of course, but was grieved and astonished by his silence. She had not a single letter. They were reposing in piles, however, in Carson's desk. Then Carson wrote to Rose, that he could unfold the mystery, if she would meet him at a certain house, a lonely, unfrequented place, at broad noon. Distracted with anxiety. bespoke a rare type of womanhood; and I read and knowing nothing of the quarrel between him and her lover, she went, telling no one but her maid servant where she was going.

Meantime Harry Mortimer had arrived, and was speeding to Rose Ternon with the impatience of a lover, Mr. Ternon was absent, but the faithful Mary, breaking through her promise, revealed to him where he could find her young mistress, and for what purpose she was gone.

Harry knew the way, and he flew to the place instantly, and found the villain reading one of the letters which he had written to the weeping girl, but wickedly changing the expressions to those of dislike and a wish to break

'Monster!' cried the kneeling girl, 'I will not elieve it. Harry is true to me. You have stolen his letters.

At this moment, Harry rushed past the kneel ng figure, and plunged a knife into Carson's throat, crying, as he did so: There, take back the lie you are telling!

Carson never breathed again. The knife had nenetrated to the lungs, and he fell to the floor. covered to his waist with blood.

There was but one course to take-instant flight. A ship was to sail the next morning .-Rose went home to her father, told him all, and he promised her that he would himself carry her to America by another month, to join her husband, as he would then be. But in the darkness of night Mortimer came and pleaded so earnestly for a marriage then, that Mr. Ternon could not refuse him, and Rose and Mary accompanied the exile to his new home, under the name of Fleetwood. This name was again changed for another, fear prompting the exchange. Mr. Ternon was dead, and there was nothing to recall them to England. Carson's dead body was found, and the murder fixed upon Rose, whose letters lay scattered over the

But that terrible sight was ever present to both. True, Carson merited punishment, but Mortimer's after thoughts shrunk from himself for inflicting it. Everywhere, the bleeding throat rose before him, and with Rose it was a species of insanity: The sight of a knife would bring on spasms. She had fully believed that her child would come into the world with the signet of blood, and when I told her, she received the intelligence with pain, but no surprise. The poor infant lived only a few days, and the father and mother fell victims to the pestilence of 1832, in New York, to which city they had removed, for they never continued long in one place, The property went to distant heirs, excepting a large bequest to Mary, who is still alive, and is married to a worthy man in her own country. No one knows the secret of Carson's death, save us two.

CAT RACES .- Some sporting gentlemen in Belgium have lately organized matches between cats. These animals it is necessary to observe, possess to a high degree the facility of finding their way back to their home under the most disadvantageou circumstances. According to the Meuse of Liege (to be pronounced "mews" on this occasion,) a match of this nature took place in that town. Eighteen cats belonging to different persons in the quarter of the city called Outre-Meuse, were taken a distance of a league, and let loose at midnight. In exactly half an hour one of the cats reached home, and carried away the first prize and all the others arrived in rapid succession. Three toms, whose roving disposition triumphed over every sporting sentiment, did not, however, make their appearance until after sunrise. Their names have consequently been scratched out of all other subsequent racing engagements.

PHELANTHROPY -Secreiter (Dutch Hans,) of Detroit, has accepted Michael Phelan's challenge to play him a hilliard match for $5,000. We are afraid Secreiter will lose his money, but hope that he may not be so unfortunate. "A fellow Phelan makes us wondrous kind." If Mike is conquered

The Railroad Conductor Caught.

'Holloa, Limpy, the cars will start in a minte; hurry up, or we shall leave you behind!' The cars were waiting at a station of one of ur Western railroads. The engine was puffing nd blowing. The baggage-master was busy with baggage and checks. The men were hurrying to and fro with chests and valises, packages and trunks. Men, women and children vere rushing for the cars, and securing their eats, while the locomotive snorted, and blowed.

A man carelessly dressed was standing on the platform of the depot. He was looking around im, and seemingly paid little attention to what was passing. It was easy to see that he was lame. At a hasty glance one might easily have upposed that he was a man of neither wealth or influence. The conductor of the train gave nim a contemptuous look, and slapping him amiliarly on the shoulder, called out:

'Halloa, Limpy, better get aboard, or the cars will leave you behind!" 'Time enough, I reckon,' replied the individ-al so roughly addressed, and he retained his emingly listless position. The last trunk was tumbled into the baggage ear. 'All aboard!' cried the conductor. 'Get on, Limpy!' said he, as he passed the lame, carelessly dressed man.

The lame man made no reply. Just as the rain was slowly moving away, the lame man tepped on the platform of the last car, and walking in, quietly took a seat. The train had moved on a few miles when the conductor appeared at the door of the car where our friend was sitting. Passing along, he soon discovered the stranger whom he had seen at the station. 'Hand out your money here?'

'I don't pay,' replied the lame man, quietly. Don't pay

'No. sir.

'We'll see about that. I shall put you out at the next station!' And he seized the valise which was on the rack over the head of our

'Better not be so rough, young man,' answered the stranger.

The conductor released the carpet bag for a he bassed on to collect the fare from other pasengers. As he stopped at a seat a few paces off, a gentleman who had heard the conversation just mentioned, looked up at the conductor,

'Do you know to whom you were speaking No. sir.

'That was Peter Warburton, the president of he road 2

'Are you sure of that, sir?' replied the conuctor, trying to conceal his agitation. 'I know him '

The color rose a little in the young man's ace, but with a strong effort he controlled himelf and went on collecting his fare as usual.

Meanwhile Mr. Warbutton sat quietly in his eat-none of those who were near him could inravel the expression of his face, nor tell what ould be the next movement in the scene. And he of what thought he? He had been rudely treated; he had been unkindly taunted with the nfirmity which had come perhaps through no fault of his. He could revenge himself if he chose. He could tell the directors the simple truth, and the young man would be deprived of nis place at once. Should he do it?

And yet, why should he care? He knew what he was worth. He knew how he had risen by his own exertions to the position he now held. When, a little orange-pedler, he stood by the street-crossings, he had many a rebuff .-He had outlived those days of hardshin he was respected now. Should he care for a perfect stranger's roughness or taunt? Those who sat near him waited curiously to see how it

Presently the conductor came back. With a steady energy he walked up to Mr. Warburton's side. He took his books from his pocket, the bank bills, the tickets which he had collected, and laid them in Mr. Warburton's hand.

'I resign my place, sir,' he said. The president looked over the accounts for a noment, then motioning him to the vacant seat

"Sit down, sir, I would like to talk with you." As the young man sat down, the president turned to him a face in which was no angry feeling, and spoke to him in an under tone.

'My young friend, I have no revengeful feelngs to gratify in this matter; but you have been very imprudent. Your manner, had it been thus to a stranger, would have been injurious to the interests of the company. I might tell them of this, but I will not. By doing so I should throw you out of your situation, and you might find it difficult to find another. But in future, remember to be polite to all whom you meet. You cannot judge of a man by the coat he wears; and even the poorest should be treated with civility. Take up your books, sir. I shall tell no one of what has passed. If you change your course, nothing which has happened to-day shall injure you. Your situation is

The train of cars swept on, as many a train had done before; but within it a lesson had been given and learned, and the purport of the lesson ran somewhat thus, 'Don't judge from appearances,'-Cincinnati Herald.

still continued. Good morning, sir,'

Colonel John G. Barr.

The writer of this anecdote was well acquaint d with Colonel John Gorman Barr, late consul Melbourne, Australia. He was a man of brilliant parts. With a mind stored with useful knowledge, he possessed social qualities that endeared him to all who had the good fortune to be thrown into his company. Among the many original good stories that he used to relate with a gusto peculiar to him, I remember the following. Before I relate it, however, I will preface it by stating for the benefit of those who knew him not, that he was commander of the first Alabama company received by the government for the war with Mexico, and, for awhile, acting lieutenant-colonel of his regiment. His amiable temper, his generosity and manly bearing, endeared him to his men to a remarkable degree. During the 'heated term' of the Presidential campaign of 1856, Captain Barr was called by his engagements to visit the northern part of Bibb county. The region not being familiar with him, darkness approaching, and the houses few and far between, he bethought him of seekng a lodging for the night. He reined up his horse in front of a house. There was a calf hitched to the gate, a spinning-wheel on the piazza, and an old lady knitting. Everything looked quite snug. Captain Barr (although a remarkably modest man when he encountered the fair sex), ventured to inquire the chance of night's lodging there. The good lady, after hesitating awhile, stated that her 'old man' not being at home, she didn't like to take in any

'How far is it to the next house?' inquired the gallant captain.

'About a mile.'

'Good evening, ma'am.'

'Good evening.' And the weary horse and rider plodded on. Captain Barr rode along until he thought he had gone 'about a mile,' without seeing any He now began to think that he was indeed going 'about a mile'-that is, going around a circle whose diameter was a mile. This thought proceeded from the tortuosity of the road. His his arrival at the long-looked-for house. Custom being contagious, and the good people in that region being simple in their tastes and wants, he was not surprised that at the gate a calf was hitched, and on the piazza a spinningwheel stood, and in the door a lady knitting.-Accosting the latter, he said: 'Can I stay all night?'

The good lady intimated that her husband being absent, she doubted the propriety of accomodating a stranger.

Disappointed, but nothing daunted, our here inquired the distance to the next house. 'About a mile-but I've done told you that once before ' Perplexed beyond measure, he at length ob tained permission to alight, hitch his horse, and rest himself on the piazza. The good lady eyed him with no expression of good-will, and being often accustomed to make the best of a had hargain, the captain took a seat that was offered by no means graciously. In the yard he discovered a little light-haired boy peeping curiously at

'Is that your son, madam?' he inquired of the good lady who was busy in her household luties, who answered with a short, jerking 'yes. By some legerdemain of his own, the captain oon had the little fellow between his knees, talking quite socially, him around the corner of the house.

'What's your name, my little man?' 'Captain John G. Barr, sir,' promptly replied

'Well, I hope that you will be a better man than your namesake.'

'What's that you say?' loudly interrupted the mother. 'Don't you dar say anything agin Captain Barr in this house, if you expect to stay here all night when my old man comes home.' The captain gallantly apologized and promsed more discretion.

After awhile, the 'old man' came in, and when he had rather gruffly saluted the stranger-entered into conversation. The more he looked at Barr, the more he looked perplexed. After one long and intent gaze, he started up, threw his arms around the neck of Barr, and bursting into tears, cried out: 'Wife, it's him, it's him!

'Why Captain John G. Barr, God bless him.' Never was there such a revolution. All the chairs of the house were brought into requisition for the use of the captain. His horse was put up, not in the corn crib, but near by, the mother was all smiles and apologies, and never prepared a better supper in her life. How to Make Money .- "Let the business of everybody else alone and attend to your own. Don't buy what you don't want. Use every hour to advantage, and study to make every leisure hour useful. Think twice hefore you throw away a dollar; remember you will have another to make for it. Find recreation in looking after your business, and so, your business will not be neglected in looking after recreation. Buy low, sell fair, and take care of the profits. Look over your books regularly, and if you find an error of a cent, trace it out. Should a stroke of misfortune come upon you in trade, retrench, work harder, but never "fly the track." Confront difficulties with unflinching perseverance, and they will disappear at last. Though you should even fail in the struggle, you will be honored, but shrink from the task and you will be despised. By following these rules, however, you "need never say fail." Pay debts promptly, and so exact your dues. Keep your word. Take the papers.

On the top of the head, about six inches from the snout, were two eyes as large as a cent, while just beyond were two small horns, surrounded at the base by long hair. The mouth of the monster. set around with sharp teeth, was of sufficient capacity to take in the head of a child six or eight years old, and its great tongue seemed to be covered with little prickles. It had no gills, and the only breathing apertures were two holes in the snout. On each side were two great fins, while protruding from its belly were two hands, with five fingers, and almost as perfect as a human hand. In its mouth were found six or eight small fish, and the probability is that the monster was taking his dinner when he was hooked from his native element. Very fishy

Until decided by the Courts of the State.

Proposals Will be received, until January 1st, at the office of Henry A. Cobb, No. 102 Montgomery street, for the setting of a Stone, Brick and Iron Fence or Railing around the Fireman's Plot in Lone Mountain Cemetery. Plans and specifications to be seen as above. The Trustees reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

H. A. COBB, Chairman,

Trustees Cemetery S. F. F. D. "I do not consider that any considerable number of firemen in this city will allow themselves to be provoked into the "riot and disorder" of which | willing to admit there is fault on both sides in re so much has been said, in case of a conflict o authority between Mr. Whitney and myself."

This is the hypocritical language indulged in by the "pretender" to the Chief Engineership, in his still born card which appeared in the papers some time since, in answer to the card published by the friends of Chief Engineer Whitney; and yet the first demonstration made towards "riot and disorder" was made by John C. Lane and his supporters on yesterday, at the alarm in the Fourth District, in attempting to exercise authority which he is not possessed of. John C. Lane desires, as we have stated before, "riot and disorder" in this Department, so that he may have the opportunity of suspending and having disbanded Engine Companies 3 and 6, and the Hook and Ladder Companies, which companies he knows will not obey him, un til the Courts decide the disputed question of the Chieftainship. Lane endeavored yesterday, by all means in his power, backed up by those companies who cheer him, to create "riot and disorder," by attempting to give orders to companies whom he is well aware do not recognize him, and he would have been eminently successful, had it not been for the timely interference of First Assistant Engineer Van Orden and the Chief of Police and

When the alarm was given vesterday, the de partment turned out with promptitude. As No. 5 reached the corner of Montgomery and Commer, cial streets, the head of No. 3's rope turned Commercial into Montgomery street. Immediately a race commenced: No. 3 was badly manned, and No. 5 had a good running crowd. No. 3 came up even with 5 and the latter commenced "jockeying" the former. At the corner of Clay street and Montgomery, a grocers wagon came in the way, and the companies separated, No. 5 to the left and No. 3 to the right. This impediment gave 5 the Block, they again "jockeyed" 3 and gave them the choice of going into a hole in the street made in front of that huilding or storping altogether. No.

We are surprised at the position taken by No. 5. on vesterday. The members of that company must certainly know that there is as much bitter ness against them on one side of the Department as there is against No. 3 on their part; and for them to exercise control over any po.tion of the Department as they did yesterday, was very illjudged, because if that company, or any portion of it is to respond to the call of John C. What there is objection to, is the whole matter, we will state that the conflict yesterday was not between Chief Engineer Whitney and John C. Lane; because the former was at the time at the office of Thomas Tennent Esq., en Battery street, on business and did not hear the firemen of the organization, who shall be their alarm, therefore; the honor and all the responsibility of the troubles yesterday rests upon the pretender to the Chief Engineership-John C. Lane.

Organization and Admission. There has been so much said lately as to who are and who have been the active firemen in the ies comprising the department: Co's. Empire 1, Manhattan 2, Jan. 13, '54, Feb. 4 June 15, '50, Howard 3. Sept. 5 Knickerbocker 5, Volunteer 7, June 18, '54, Aug. 2, '53, July 4, '52, Vigilant 9. Crescent 10 Columbian 11 Oct. 25, '52, Nov. 3 Pennsylvania 12, Young America 13, Tiger 14, June 18

The supporters of the pretender to the Chie appear that those who sustained, and still sustain Chief Engineer Whitney, are 'what'are elegantly termed "feather bed firemen;" or in other words those who are better contented, when the alarm sounds to remain in bed than turn out. We are spect to the activity of a certain portion of the department, but that all the feather bed firemen are in the ranks of the friends of Chief Engineer Whitney, is to use the chaste language of the organ of the "pretenders" a lie.

With the exception of Empire Engine Company No. 1, and Knickerbocker Engine Company No. 5 not one of the companies so loud in their support of the "pretender" have the slightest claim to any particular service. The companies we have just mentioned, have labored long and faithfully in the service of the City, and we would be the last one in the world to deprive them of the credit which justly belongs to them. It is true that within the last two years both companies have been out of service a great deal of the time, that is since coming in possession of their new apparatus.

Manhattan 2, a Lane company although admit ted into the Department nearly five years since has in reality been in active service three years of the time. And for the reason that the company very foolishly compelled the City Government to purchase an apparatus which turned out to be worthless, and which the company threw up in disgust. Her original purchase and repairs made upon her cost the City $10,000. She was effective once and that was at the fire corner Battery and Commercial streets; which is fresh in the recollection of every fireman.

Volanteer 7, another Lane Company, and amon the members of which there are no "feather bed firemen." has been admitted into the Depart ment since June 1854; a period of four years and six months, out of which time the company have done no duty as a company for nearly one year. Crescent No. 10, a Lane Company, has been in the Department since 1852, and has been active. and we allude to it simply for the purpose of saving that out of the sixty-five men which comprise start again, but as they were nearing Montgomery the roll of the company, thirty-three of them were admitted just in time to have a vote at the late election. What a swindle! and yet the fault cannot be laid altogether to the company, but to those magnificent | ted as he pretends to be, could say, if appealed to partment by the Judiciary Committee.

There is no objection to No. 13 having an en gine house, apparatus and all else necessary for the protection of the densely inhabited district that the members of Young America 13, do no work, are entitled to exemption, hold the balance of power in the 'department, without giving the slightest equivalent, and dictating to the active officers and who shall not, when they boldly say themselves, they are not expected to come under the supervison of the officers of the organization. This cry which the friends of Lane have raised against the friends of Chief Engineer Whitney is senseless one they could possibly bring to bear—that is if they expected to create public sympathy by it. Her statements are many of them trivial; while others, if not absurd, had better for her own credit have been left unsaid. The nan of respectability who, in his sober senses, attempts to destroy himself and wife; whom it is known he has loved fondly, but too well, and by that act leave his child a helpless orphan cast upon the indifferent mercies of a selfish world, does not mmit the rash act without a reason, That eason he gives, and if any reason could justify he act, the one given would be sufficient. But she denies the statement in toto. What reason then could be have had for the terrible act -Evidently because he was a Jew. and she a Christian. It could not possibly be owing to any act of infidelity on her part. It is much more likely that a man should wantonly shoot himself and a virtuous wife, than that a woman should mistake an outside individual for her husband, and admit such instances of absence of mind are of too rare ccurrence in California, to be believed for a monent. Besides, it is not possible that Col. Meoney, a prominent State officer, should so far forgot himself as to look with lecherous eyes upon a retty woman. No, no, there is evidently some nistake in all this. Does not the tender and afectionate regard expressed by Mrs. Wand towards her husband, indicate a love and devotion which sets all question of her fidelity at rest, and shows that all these allegations against her, must be a nistake? Those horrid letters, too, from New visaged witnesses, those ghosts of Banquo, which rise up in judgment against her, they are all a nistake. Will the Christian public look calmly on and see her and Col. Meloney thus abused by a charity might have been thrown over faults and follies as weaknesses, unfortunately incident to human nature, and which might in time be re ormed and forgotten, but the step she has chosen to take, in attempting, unnecessarily, to blast the reputation of her already injured husband, to shield herself and Meloney from public condemna tion, places her in a light most wretchedly unenvi able. One may indeed have the charity to believe that the letter was prepared for her by an interested party, and that she, on a sick bed, subnor of Washington and Kearny street, 5 passed 3, "feather bed," or our friend Mr. R. Mr. Eckfeldt, the chief coiner in the Mint, is one of the very best officers in that institution, and certainly none can be more competent for the position he holds. He is a thorough mechanic, and understands all the attributes of his business perfectly. He is acceptable to the people and there was no call for his removal, except by the voice of a political trickster, who was a member of Grand Jury, (which passed upon the actions of Mr. Eckfeldt, during the exciting times at the Mint), and endeavored to procure an indictment against him, but signally failed, as did all prosecuions against him. This is the appointce of Presi dent Buchanan; but fortunately, R. W. Slocomb's name must go before the Senate, for confirmation, in which we are in hopes Slocomb will fail again.

For nine months, members of the ompany—one and all—have tended upon him day met with in this country, and they deserve the commendation of all for their noble and generous efforts. Everything that was in the power of man ng one for their use. We have given our views in vain although he lived far beyond the time ex pected. Words cannot tell half the agony that experienced during the past four or five months and death never was more welcome to mortal than would be a far better field to test a steam engine it was to poor Riker. For many months he was attended constantly by Rev. Mr. Hill, and he died flags at the different engine houses are at half-mast lraped in mourning, and the bells were tolled uphis death." The trip of the Pennsylvania's to Sacramento which was contem-AGENT. Mr. James McGinn, who is about plated to be made immediately after the holidays will by reason therefore be somewhat delayed.

> STATE REGISTAR .-- We have received from the ublishers Messrs. Langley & Morrison, the State Register for 1859, one of the most valuable books ssued from the Press. It is replete with valuable information, is handsomely gotten up, and is altogether a wo.thy production. Mr. Langley under whose especial care the Register has been collated deserves great credit for his enterprise.

TALL PLAYING,-The Columbian Engine No. 5, New Bedford, Mass., played, on Sept. 20th, 227 feet, through fifty feet of hose, drafting her own water; also, an inch and a half stream, 172 feet, horizontal. She is of the piano style, crane neck, side stroke engine.

No Court .- In consequence of the absence of udge Norton, there was no action taken yesterday in the case of Chief Engineer Whitney against the Board of Delegates.

Theatrical

Maguire's Opera House .- "Po-ca-hon-tas," one f the best burlesques ever presented in this city. has been one of the principal attractions at Maquire's, since our last. The burlesque is splendidy put upon the stage; scenery new and costumes elegant. It abounds in local hits and puns, and taken altogether, is the greatest play upon words we have ever seen or heard. The principal characters have been sustained by Mrs. Wood Mrs. Judah, and Messrs. Baker, Stephens and Thoman

On Thursday evening, the beautiful comedy of "An Unequal Match" was presented, with Mrs Wood as "Hester Grazebrook," Mrs. Judah as "Mrs. Montressor," Miss Gratten as "Bessy Hibblethwaite," Harry Courtaine as "Dr. Botcherby," Mr. Mitchell as "Grazebrook," Mr. Kingsland as "Sir Sowerby Honeywood," and Mr. Stephens as "Blinkingsop." The comedy, which is one of the most beautiful in the English language, was splendidly acted. The performance concluded with the nusical burletta of "Jenny Lind," in which Mrs. Wood appeared as "Jenny." By the way, we will remark, that we hope Harry Courtaine will be pernanent now at the Opera House. Last evening, "Love's Disguises" was played

(with the same cast as when first produced in this city, with the exception that Mr. Stephens personated the character of "Marcel," formerly acted by Mr. Mitchell), to a large and appreciative audience. It is really a splendld spectacle, and were it pruned somewhat of its tendency to broadness in language, would be far more attractive than it is now. The spectacle is magnificently arranged, and in point of scenery music and costumes, unsarpassed. To-night, "Love's Disguises" will be

To-morrow (Sunday evening), the new burlesque, never before performed here, entitled "Whittington and his Cat," will be presented: Mrs. Wood appearing as "Whittington," supported by Miss Grattan, Messrs. Stephens, Courtaine, and the stock company.

LYCEUM.—This has been decidedly a benefit week at this house, prior to the termination of the dramatic season which was on Thursday evening Last evening a complimentary benefit was tendered to Mr. Wilson, the manager, which drew together a large and fashionable audience, and we think a most excellent provision, and one which which must have been highly satisfactory to the beneficiary. We understand that a talented troupe of Minstrels have been engaged, among whom are the following favorites; Charley Backus, Frank Hussey, Sam Wells. Tom Raleigh. Frank Modena. y the President of the Board of Trustees, City Mike Mitchel, Master Lewis, Charles Abbott, Max Zorer, Charles Henry, Wm. Barker, Tom Romaine and Johnson. As many of the company are well goods endangered by fire, and shall fail or refuse known performers, it is unnecessary for us to pre-roll of sixty-five active members. All of which is respectfully submitted. THOMAS LEVY. Grass Valley, Dec. 1, 1858.

St. Ann's Market .- A very fine market has tee and Pacific Engine Co. No. 8 by which the been opened in Market street, near Taylor, under the name of St. Ann's Market, by Mr. George W. Letter, for many years one of the proprietors of the celebrated Washington Restaurant. An establishment of the kind is absolutely required in the Valley, as there are a large number of families living in and around the vicinity, for whom it is a great convenience, and being in the hands of one who will attend to the wants of his customers, it will be doubly so. In St. Ann's Market may always be found everything in the meat and vegetable line, of the very best quality, and everything purchased of Mr. Letter, will be delivered to cusomers at their residence. We hope our readers in the Valley, and all others will give George a > Winn's -We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Winn's Fountain Head, No. 160 Kearny street Supplies of all kinds for the holidays are in abundance. Winn, it is well known, is indefatigable in getting up the finest display of nice things, as the contents of his establishment will show. Cakes, pyramids, sugarplums, and in fact, there is not anything in the world of "sweets," he has not. Call on him, purchase what you need, and you will not regret it, for you may be sure you will win by it.

PENSION DAY .- The New York Leader of November 6th, says: "Last Saturday was a busy day at the office of the Treasurer of the Fire Department, the pensions being due on that day. Not-In TROUBLE .- We see by the Nevada County | withstanding the stormy weather, nearly every widow was on hand. Nearly three hundred of them are on the list. It is a noble work, this Fireman's Fund, and the firemen should think of it, and what is depending on them to support it.

FIRE ALARMS .- The Sacramento Union of Monday, says: "An alarm of fire was caused about 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, by the burning of a canvas ceiling and a portion of the roof of a barber shop on the north side of J street, between Sixth and Seventh-cause, the proximity of the canvas to the stove-pipe. Another alarm was created about 12 o'clock, midnight, by smoke issuing from the chimney of the bakery on J street, opposite the Union office.'

FIRE.—The Marysville Democrat of Monday says: The fire, which occurred on Sunday night. consumed an old frame house near the corner of Fourth and B streets, somewhere in the vicinity of the Foundry. There was nothing in it of any value. Warren P. Miller's steam wagon was standing on the outside, but was we believe, not injured.

BEN ADHEM. Our Sacramento correspondent speaks his mind very fully in regard to the Wand affair. We are in a happy state of ignorance touching the ins and outs of the mat'er, and are therefore not to be supposed as indorsing the communication alluded to; but as our corespondent is usually correct, we give his letter entire.

CRINOLINE IN RHYME .- A lady with a crinoline was walking down a street-her feathers fluttering in the air, her hoops stuck out some feet. She walked the earth as if she felt of it she was no part, and proudly did she step along, for pride was in her heart. She did not see a curly dog which walked close by her side, all save the curly tail of which her crinoline did hide. His tail the dog with pleasure shook-it fluttered in the wind, and from the lady's crinoline stuck out a foot behind. A crowd the tail did soon espy, as it waved to and fro, and like a rudder seemed to point the way the maid must go. The curly dog, right pleased was he, with the quarter he had got, and walked To Railroad Companies, Mining beside the lady in a kind of a dog trot. Each step the lady now did take served to increase the train, while those who followed in her wake, roared out with might and main. Some held their sides, they laughed so hard, and others fairly cried, while many even still confessed they had almost "liked to died." But still the lady sailed along in crinoline and pride, unmindful of the crowd behind or dog close by her side. But soon another dog espied the tail which fluttered free, it so provoked his doggish ire, he could not let it be. But with a deep ferocious growl, for battle straight he went, and 'neath the lady's crinoline both dogs were quickly pent. They fought tis said, an hour or more-the lady nothing knew-but with her head erect sailed on, and did her way pursue. Some sav she would never have known at all about the fight, had not one dog mistook and gave her attention to the restablishment for the manufacture of Fire Engines, Hose, Hose Reels, and Fire Apparatus. They have a large Factory, well stocked with tools arranged expressly for the business, and being practical mechanics with more than twenty years experience in Engine building, thereby obtaining a thorough theoretical and practical knowledge of the business, they feel confident of their ability to furnish a better article than can be found elsewhere. They warrant all their work to give general satisfaction to the purchasers on delivery and trial, or no sale, and also to remain in good order for one year without expense to the purchaser, if well used. The workmanship, models and proportions, durability and power of their machines stand unrivalled. In proof of this they beg leave to submit the following well authenticated facts, which are selected from a large number of similar performances:

In 1850, at Troy, the Good Intent Engine No. 13 of Troy, beat 9 Engines on quantity, receiving a Silver Trumpet awarded by the Renselaer County Agricultural Society to the best engine.

In 1834, at Hartford, Conn. the Pacific of Chicopee, played 174 feet high through 400 feet of hose, and the Holyoke, of Holyoke 172 feet high, reciving the first and second prizes and beating 22 engines. In 1855, at Springfield Mass the Bay Stato, of Westfield, was awarded the first prize of 8300, for beating upwards of 30 engines in playing through 400 feet of hose. In the same year at Waterloe, N. Y., the Franklin of Geneva, took the the first prize on quantity, and the Niagara of Chicago, took the the first do, on distance. In 1856, at New Haven, Conn., the Rippowam of Stamford was awarded the first prize of five hundred dollars for beating 25 engines in playing through 450 feet of hose. In 1857 at Hartford, Conn., the Pacific, of Chicopee, took the first prize, the Mayflower of North Bridgewater, the second, the Collinsville of Collinsville, the fifth, the Holyoke of Holyeke, the seventh, and the Cataract, of Poughkeepsie, the oighth prize, where 39 Engines were tested, and only nine of them built by L. Button & Co. At Elmira, Sept. 1st, the Franklin, of Geneva, beat all competitors, playing an inch 1994 feet, through 400 feet of hose for which according to the advertised terms of the trial, it was entitled to a prize of five hundred dollars. At Rockford, Illinios, October 30, the Winnebago played an inch stream 221 feet before a

Restoring Grey Hair TOTHE

ORIGINAL COLOR

TPREVENTS THE HAIR FROM FALLing off. It removes all dandruff and scurf from the head It allays all irritation of the sculp: it cools and refreshes the head, and imparts to the hair a healthy, lively appearance and is highly recommended in case of baldness.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In offering this article of FISH'S INFALLIBLE HAIR RE-TORATIVE to the public, the proprietor felt great diffidence, in consequence of the imposition to which the people had been exposed by the charlatans and quacks, whose highest ambition was to rob mankind of their money and instead of ameliorating their condition, to add another link to the great chain of human misfortunes. If, by the aid of seience, we shall have been instrumental in giving to mankind a means of restoring and beaulifying the human hair, we shall not have labored in vain.

It is well known that hundreds of preparations have been introduced pretending to preserve the Hair, and for restoring it again upon heads that are bald, it is needless to say, they have invariably failed to produce the desired effect—having been composed principally of oils, and other deleterious substances which gam up the scalp of the head and thereby distroy the life and roots of the hair.

We desire it distinctly understood that no ingredients of this kind enter into the composition of this article. The materials used are of the most valuable kind and compounded strictly on scientific principles.

The constituents of hair of various colors present some differences; for example red hair contains a reddish colored oil, a large proportion of sulphur and a small quantity of iron, fair hair a white oil, with phosphate of magnesia. This article restores the oily substance at the roots which when lost causes the hair to blanch or turn grey.

This preparation is unlike others—it is no Hair Dye. It acts directly on the roots of the hair, removing effectually, all foriegn accumulations which produce the very disease that causes the Hair to turn grey, or pall from the head.

The proprietor, feeling convinced that nature had somewhere prepared an antidote for every calamity, has after much research and experience, produced an invaluable RE-TORATIVE to the public, the proprietor felt great diffidence, in consequence of the imposition to which the ere prepared an antidote for every calamity, has after ich research anh experience, produced an invaluable medy. Try it, and if are not satisfied that your money has been rell expended, it shall be returned.

Telegraph Co.

N PURSUANCE OF AN ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA approved March 18th, 1858, and under the Constitution and the general laws of the State of California, "The Pacific and Atlantic Telegraph Company" have completed their organization.

The Company propose to construct and put in operation a line of Electro-Magnetic Telegraph between the cities of San Francisco and Los Angelos, via San Jose, Santa Cruz, Monterey and other intermediate points, intersecting at Los Angelos the Overland Mail Route from Memphis to San Francisco.

They also propose to extend and complete immediately a continuous line of Telegraph from Los Angelos to to San Antonio, in Texas, and connecting with the various lines of Telegraph of the Eastern States, and also construct side lines, which will furnish facilities for communication with the Principal Cities and Ports of Mexico. The route proposed by this Company is deemed more practicable than any other route accross the plains. The distance is several hundred miles shorter. The whole line being in a southern latitude, will be en-irely free from the injurious effects of frost. The frequency of Mail Stations and the constant travel at all seasons of the year, will protect the line from inter. ruption, and enable the Company to keep it always in The friendly disposition of the Southern Indians, as compared with that of the hostile tribes of the North, is another strong inducement for adopting this route. The books for subscription to the Stock are now open at the BANKING HOUSE OF DAVIDSON, in SAN FRAN-CISCO; where the Articles of Association of the Company may be seen, and any information on the subject obtained SOL.
